DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sako et al. (U.S. Patent 4,173,033) in view of Kobayashi (U.S. Patent 6,301,127).

As to claim 20, Sako et al. discloses a film capacitor as shown in figures 4-7 comprising:

first and second conductive layers (the first and second conductive layers are formed between a capacitor body and lead wires 13) including first and second interstices (12, column 4, line 31)

the first interstice (12) has a plurality of first widths laying in a first plane, see figures 4-5, the second interstice (12) having a second width laying in a second plane engaged (see figure 4) with the first interstice (12) by a dielectric layer (11, column 4, lines 29-30) disposed between the first and second interstices (12) to form a capacitor (see figure 7); the first and second planes are substantially parallel, and wherein the second width is substantially overlaps at least two of the plurality of the first widths.

Sako does not disclose a circuit board comprising a capacitor. Kobayashi shows a capacitor (28) connected and mounted on a circuit board/substrate (20), see figure 4.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have a teaching of Kobayashi employed in the structure of the capacitor of Sako et al. in order to provide a stored energy for the circuit board.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sutardja and Mou et al. disclose related art.
